COVER - This very beautiful creche, on the stage of the Parish Hall of the Mattapoisett Congregational Church, has been completed by 3rd, 4th, 5th and 6th grade students at the Congregational Church under the direction of Mrs. Priscilla Hathaway. The top photo shows 4 of the children: Rick Dodge, Elizabeth DeMello, Jeff Chopoorian and Stetson Mendell arranging the figures. Fifth and sixth graders were unavailable at the time of the picture taking.

The creche will be on display to brighten the Christmas season, thanks to the students' creative effort.

Tri-County Concert Sunday

"WINTER CELEBRATIONS"

Carols from the Caribbean, Canada and South America reminding us of yule logs, holly and a new birth of faith for all men, together with a salute to Hanukkah, will fill the air Sunday afternoon, at 3 P.M. as the 65-voice Sippican Choral Society and the 48-piece Regional Symphonic Band combine forces for tuneful "Winter Celebrations" at Old Rochester Regional High School.

Sponsored by the Tri-County Music Association, this most ambitious and melodious combination for vocalists directed by Leo L. Peduzzi, and the instrumentalists conducted by John R. Pandolfi was composed by Arthur Frackenpohl as a joyful prayer for Vernon Ingraham of Marion will serve as narrator for this illustrious segment of the program that also includes a swinging arrangement of "Deck the Halls", music from "The Nutcracker Suite" and an original rhythmic Christmas medley by Charles Herman, a trombonist in the Band and supervisor of instrumental music at the Dartmouth Middle School.

Following the program the entire audience most cordially is invited to a wassail party in the cafeteria where the arrangement of punch bowls and goodies will be enhanced by glorious decorations created by Mrs. David McCormack, art director for the Mattapoisett schools. The invitation to the party is extended by the members of the board of directors of the Association.

Both of these young people come to Marion with enthusiasm and ability abounding for this presentation. Miss Hewitt, as a singer and song writer, has been singing with Frank Owens group, Keith Alexander Group, and the Village Gate and Philharmonic Hall, New York City. Meet Jim Greene

A lot of folks in town already know Jim. Some may not. What's important is that Jim, at the request of a lot of people like you and me, has decided to seek the office of Selectman. That's why we'd like you to meet him now. And find out why he's running. We feel the sooner you get to know Jim, the more convinced you'll become, like us, that he's the right man to have in our Selectman's office. He's quite a no-nonsense, know-how guy who feels strongly about Mattapoisett's growth and direction. He has a lot of good ideas. But more than anything else, he's a qualified, proven leader who can give Mattapoisett an awful lot of what it could use right now. Direction and planning.

Friend to Foe - Why?

Editorial, D.C.J.

If the Europeans, the British and the Russians decided in their collective wisdom that Manhattan Island should be created the Nation of Israel because there are so many Jewish people living there, there is a distinct possibility that displaced property owners from Manhattan might resent that fact. There might even be harsh words leading to war. Then, should the new Israeli nation take the west bank of the Hudson River along with considerable stretches of New Jersey in order to secure the borders of Manhattan against attack, the rest of the United States might join with the Manhattanites in hostile feeling and action against the newly created nation.

The United States is entering a dangerous period that will severely damage the economy of the country that could lead to a middle east war in support of just such a proposition transferred to a different ground. For years, we lived in mutual agreement with the Arabian states to the benefit of both parties. Now, we have lined them up solidly against us and denounce the European States which refuse to join us in subverting their own national interest in a blanket support of Israel.

The Israelis have earned the admiration of large portions of the world for their diligence and courage in the forging of their new nation. They have been attacked and have fought brilliantly to enlarge their territory. They feel that their national interest demands that they keep the land won in battle. It may be time for the United States to finally decide in our national interest. Instead of foreign policy from the heart perhaps we could use the head. Before the United States becomes involved in a war to keep large tracts of sandy real estate perhaps we should ask our leaders, "Why the devil are we here?"

We have just finished 10 years of war in Vietnam and nobody yet has explained why it was important to the United States. Preceding that, we fought a costly war in Korea and nobody explained why it was so important to sacrifice lives there in an effort we were determined not to win. Nobody explained what we would win if we had been willing.

The Arabs have considerable reason to resent the creation of Israel. They have more reason to resent the enlargement of Israel and they fear the growing power of the enlarged country. Before we go all out in opposing the Arabian stand, I think we should require our leadership to explain in full just why the Arabians are so wrong.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

In a town where all that is necessary to be tried, found guilty and to have such announced in public print, is for someone to make an accusation at a Selectmen's meeting, where the accused is not even accorded the courtesy of notification of such accusation, only learning of it when he reads it in public print, one should not be surprised at any injustice. Indeed, I am not surprised, but so outraged as to be compelled to write this in defense of Frank Sylvia, owner of Fish on the Wharf, who has been the victim of such unfair slander as to be difficult to believe.

For about a year and half we lived in the house next to the Boutique, which is a vantage point from which it is impossible to miss much that happened in Shipyard Park or the wharf area. I was astounded at the number of "solid citizens" I saw leaving their litter behind them. Many people, returning from their boats, just threw their trash in the general direction of the piles of trash, which accumulated around the few, inadequate trash cans. How the dogs and gulls enjoyed spreading it hither and yon.

Many early mornings, a solitary figure could be seen picking up this litter, often using his truck to haul loads to the dump. At first, as I walked through the park, I would pick up as much as I could carry and put it in the trash cans, which were often already full. Since it was much like trying to carry the ocean in a sieve, I soon gave up and now just stay away from that area. But not Frank; he bought tables in an effort to confine the litter to a smaller area, he bought trash cans and continued to pick up. Several times I asked him why he bothered and he always replied, "I'd like to see it looking nice". As I have often said to many people, the town of Mattapoisett owes Frank Sylvia a big vote of thanks for his tireless efforts to clean up the litter left by thoughtless people, and for which I can see no reason why he should feel any greater responsibility than any other citizen. So, instead of a public proclamation thanking him for his heroic efforts, what does he get?----------And how is it that the owners of Romeo's are not equally responsible for the many beer and liquor bottles and candy wrappers which are strewn around the area?

I would like to hear Frank's accusers tell what sort of effort they have made to keep this area clean. Have they proposed that the town provide adequate trash cans? Have they themselves ever picked up so much as a piece of paper? Do they always put their own litter in the can? I feel a public apology is the very least that is owed to Frank for this gross injustice.

BICYCLE PATH PROPOSED

The Bicentennial Committee is concentrating efforts with 3 active sub-committees on plans for the Bicentennial. One of these, the Horizons Committee, has proposed, as a first project, the building of a Mattapoisett bicycle trail. The Selectmen have informed the Woman's Club and the Lions' Club, both clubs having expressed interest in a bike trail. They asked that each club appoint representatives to meet with Mr. Malcolm Campbell to discuss the plan.

FIRES DISCUSSED

Mr. Bisaillon, manager of a junk yard owned by Mary Linhares of Mattapoisett, discussed with Selectmen the problems that the fire department has had with repeated fire calls to the yard. Several alarms have been answered, at great cost to the town, because of fires caused by welding. Mr. Bisaillon promised that in the future, every precaution will be taken to see that no more fires are started.

TRAFFIC DECISION

The Traffic Committee met with Selectmen concerning the posting of Church Street signs. The decision originally announced to the businessmen at the meeting on November 23 now has been changed to the following: the north side of Church Street from Pearl Street to Barstow Street will be posted as one hour limited parking. The south side of Church Street will be a no parking area but signs installed there will remain covered until such time as the limited parking zone is established.

FLOOD ZONE ZONING

Selectmen reviewed the first draft of the building requirements for Flood Plan Zoning and now will coordinate it with all other departments and committees prior to its completion as a warrant article. At the next meeting they will review a by-law draft.

TOWN DISASTER PLAN

Selectmen initiated action to prepare a town disaster plan based on a new Disaster Plan published by the State. The intention is to clearly outline chains of command and responsibility in case of emergency.

BUS INQUIRY

Raymond W. Gareau, president of the Union Street Railway Company, has asked for a meeting with town officials to explore the possibility of improved service to Mattapoisett because of the energy crisis.

Selectmen have invited Mr. Gareau to meet with them on December 11 at 7 P.M.

RIVER DISCUSSION

The Tri-Town River Committee will meet with Marion and Rochester on December 13 at the Town House in Marion. Selectmen William Hubbard and Anthony Nunes, Herring Inspector, will attend to discuss the general condition of the Mattapoisett River.

Studds: The Energy Crisis

The following is Rep. Gerry E. Studds', D-Mass., special report on the Energy Crisis in part:

"It is clear that the United States will have a severe energy shortage this winter. Whether we would have such a shortage if oil imports from the Middle East had not been cut off is still an unanswered question. Estimates of the severity of the shortage by Administration officials vary all the way from 10 to 50 percent. It is shocking that the people administering this country's energy policy are unable to give more precise estimates of our energy situation, but at least one of the causes for this is very simple to understand.

"Working through the President's Office of Management and Budget (OMB), the big oil companies succeeded in preventing the Federal Trade Commission from acquiring data on the amount of oil they have in storage and in underground reserves. Without this information, it is impossible to make an accurate estimate of how much petroleum supply is available to meet the demand. By adopting an amendment to the Alaska Pipeline bill, the Congress overrode the Administration decision, and the Federal Trade Commission will now start to collect this vital information that should have been collected long ago.

"Regardless of whether the shortage this winter is completely due to lack of supply or in part due to withholding of supplies by the large multi-national oil companies, it is now clear that there will be a shortage this winter. New England has historically relied particularly heavily on oil imports from the Middle East, and consequently faces the most severe threat. On my first day in office last January, I co-filed legislation to repeal the oil import quotas then in effect, and also to repeal the federal law which allows states to restrict the speed with which crude oil is pumped out of the ground. Late last spring, the President finally took the advice of his special commission and repealed the limitations on oil imports. If he had acted earlier, it is likely that more oil would have been in New England storage tanks to be used this winter.

"The things which must be done to alleviate the impact of the energy shortage in New England this winter can be divided into three categories:

"1) Reducing demand - the shortage will be less severe in mid-winter if energy use is reduced now, so that more oil can be kept in storage for use in the coldest months. Reducing speed limits, going to year-round daylight saving time, extinguishing outdoor display lights, turning down thermostats and ending all luxury and non-essential uses of energy are some of the actions being proposed or taken to reduce energy demand.

"2) Increasing the supply - increasing the supply of essential fuels must receive at least as much attention as reducing consumption. Among the things that can be done in time to have an effect this winter are ending exports of petroleum and coal, requiring refineries to produce a greater percentage of fuel oil from each barrel of crude oil, and slowing down the use of electricity to enrich uranium for use in power plants which have not yet been built.

"3) Allocating scarce supplies - Congress initiated legislation which the President signed last Tuesday which will allocate the supply of scarce petroleum products fairly among the regions of the country. Proper implementation of this law is absolutely essential to assure that New England is not forced to bear a disproportionate share of the shortage this winter. In addition to seeing that supplies are allocated fairly to New England as a region, it is also necessary to see to it that supplies are allocated fairly to the many different fuel users within the region. The President has proposed a drastic change in the mandatory allocation program which is now operating. His changes would not become effective until December 27, after the Congress has passed new legislation to authorize them. I do not believe raising taxes is a fair way to allocate short supplies of oil products, and I would favor rationing over a tax increase. It would be outrageous simply to price out of the market those with lower incomes.

"There are many other serious problems related to the energy crisis which will affect Massachusetts -- the fact that the President believes the recreation and tourist industries are non-essential to our economy, (when they are, in fact, the very life-blood of an area like Cape Cod and the Islands, for example), increasing unemployment that can be expected as a result of the energy shortage, the danger that this crisis will be used by those who want to increase oil company profits or end progress in cleaning up our environment, just to mention a few. These energy related problems all have many ramifications, and I will discuss them in future special reports on the energy crisis."

begin their active naval duty.

According to Chief Bernard Glass, this "Delay" Program gives a prospective Navy recruit the opportunity to look over the various active duty programs available to him or her and at the same time builds seniority for pay purposes.

The program is called Operation CACHE, designed to give young men and women up to 180 days at home before reporting for active duty.

While enlisted in Operation CACHE, a young man or woman can, if qualified, select from a variety of training programs including nuclear power, advanced electronics, school guarantee, occupational specialty guarantee or reserve enlistments.

For the high school senior, age 17 and above, CACHE gives the opportunity to qualify for the Navy's high school graduate training programs - guaranteed training in specific job fields which require a high school degree.

The reserve enlistments feature the two year active duty program or the 4x10 program - serve on active duty only for as long as it takes to complete specific training schools and then return to a local Naval Reserve Center for weekly meetings and annual sum-

This will be the first in a series of free faculty concerts to be presented during the year as a public service by the University.

Featured in the December 7 concert are Miss Eleanor Carlson, pianist; Mme. Jacqueline Bazinet Cobert, soprano; and Professor Josef Cobert, flutist. All three are members of the faculty of SMU's Music Division. Their program will include works by Bach, Duparc, Faure, Debussy and Puccini.

"It is only through a University that outstanding artists can be presented at no charge to the public, " comments Professor Cobert, Chairman of SMU's Music Division. "The University supports the arts in this area by having teaching faculty who can perform and share their talents with the community."
